

EVENING BULLETIN.

FRIDAY EVENING, OCT. 23, 1857.

The last London Times has some lengthy remarks on the increase of interest by the Bank of England, and says "the suddenness of the renewal of the drain of gold which has led to this step has taken the public by surprise, because they were not prepared for the extraordinary news by the two last American mails. Allowing due weight to that intelligence, there is nothing in the movement to create alarm, although there is a high probability it may soon have to be reported." Upon the whole, it is possible that the combined operations of the American panic and the Indian insurrections may for a time have affected the English resources to the extent of two or three millions; but the Times considers, as regards the broad trade of the empire, that it is impossible to discover a cause of fear. The discount establishments have also advanced their rates a half of one per cent. The Times argues in the same article that fright alone is the cause of the daily ruin going on in America, and that there is nothing in what is now passing which will, before any length of time, interfere with the business or cripple the national resources of the country.

The St. Louis Democrat contains an account of a prize fight on an island near that city between Wm. Blake, alias Dublin Tricks, and Thomas Jennings. On the tenth round, Tricks did not come up and Jennings was declared victor.

ROMANIA.—A book recently published under the above title gives some interesting particulars of the borderland between Christendom and the country of the Moslem. We quote some paragraphs descriptive of life in the Danubian Principalities, to which so much attention is now directed:

Perhaps some of the most remarkable institutions of the Servians is the "Brotherhood," a usage descended from primitive times. Such is their affection for each other, that when a young man has lost a natural brother, he seeks in the neighborhood a brother by adoption, and confers upon him all the rights appertaining to the deceased. The two unite with each other in the name of God and St. John for mutual fidelity and assistance, during the remainder of their lives. Persons thus allied call themselves "brothers in God." The union concerns those only by whom it has been formed. The benediction of the church is not requisite to form such an alliance.

In certain parts of Servia it is customary for the youths, and maidens also, to enter into this relation on the second Monday after Easter, while kissing each other through garlands, which are afterwards exchanged. The first bond, however, is merely initiatory. At the expiration of a year, they either confirm the original choice or make a new selection. A similar relation often exists between the two sexes. A man may call a woman his "mother or sister in God." A maiden may elect an old man her "father in God," or a youth her "brother in God." This alliance between the sexes is usual in cases of distress; and when persons whose assistance is thus evoked accept the appellation, they are bound to protect and care for the unfortunate placing themselves in their hands. A violation of so solemn a contract is supposed to incur severe punishment in heaven. Enemies as well as friends enter into this singular relation. It not unfrequently exists between Turks and Servians during their bloodiest enmities.

The Servians are passionately fond of the song and the dance. Their history is preserved in ballads and traditions. Wherever there is a Slavic woman there is a song. Many a tuteful successor of the blind old bard of Greece is to be found among the mountains of Servia.

Among the Servians, the institution of "the family" retains its primitive character, every household being in itself an entire community. In the villages, picturesquely situated on the borders of the steams, or for greater security concealed in the fastnesses of the mountains, the low, rude dwellings are at a distance from each other, and of such a size that one not unfrequently forms an entire street. Around the main room, which contains a hearth in the center, are chambers for the younger married people. Iron is scarcely used in the erection of Servian dwellings, chimneys and windows are rare, the well trodden thresholds for a floor, while the loam walls and bark roofs are blackened with soot and smoke. The father is the patriarch of the family. When he dies, one of the sons, appointed by his brethren, becomes master of the house. All the members of the family work and eat together, sharing each other's joys, and alike independent of the world for support. Individual interest is merged in that of the family. Paternal and filial affection are strong; the brother is the chosen protector of the sister, of whom he is the joy and the pride.

Marriage is arranged by the fathers of the two families. At her new abode the young bride dresses an infant, touches the walls with a distaff, and spreads table with food, wine, and water. Her mouth is sealed by a piece of sugar, indicating that she should utter only what is good. For a whole year she is termed the "betrotted." In the presence of others she scarcely converses with her husband.

Every family has a patron saint, and the whole year is a round of festivals and sacred rites. They pray three times a day; and at table no person ventures to accept the place of honor without being able to improvise an appropriate expression of thanks.

NATIONAL PRODUCTIONS.—Nations are characterized not more by their people than by their other and inferior productions. Here are some of the most notable "specimens" offered by several countries:
 China has tea, porcelain, and long-tailed mandarins; Germany, clocks, printing, good stories, lager beer, and transcendental philosophy; Russia, emperors, hemp, and the kour; France, cooks, capons, compliments, and crinolines; Austria, caskets, diplomacy, and two-headed eagles; Prussia, Frederick the Great, schoolmasters, and tall grenadiers; Switzerland, watches, wooden toys, and calvinism; Italy, popes, roisins, paintings, music-grinders, and revolutionary manifestoes; Spain, chivalry, court etiquette, Cortez, Columbus, and Cervantes; England has produced statesmen, poets, orators, generals, roast beef, the Times newspaper, poor laws, taxation, fogs, spleen, grumblers, colonies, cockneys, and "Punch." America has produced Washington, a model republic, the electric telegraph, anæsthetic ether, Gen. Jackson, and several thousand "live Yankees," who produce everything that is worth producing, and something over.—Boston Post.

OUT OF WORK.—According to careful estimates, not less than twenty-five thousand seven hundred men and women have been thrown out of employment in New York city by the hard times, with no hope of getting work during the coming four or five months. Of these eight thousand are laborers, four thousand cigar makers, twenty-nine hundred workmen in iron foundries, sixteen hundred clockmakers, one thousand clerks, and so on through the list of occupations. Every branch of business contributes to the melancholy array, and we regret to find that not less than five hundred printers among the number. The book and job printing offices are all obliged to reduce their force. As the journeymen raised their wages to meet the cost of living in prosperous times it is asked by some of the papers whether they will now consider the deplorable condition of the employers by reducing their rates. It is complained, however, generally that provisions have not fallen in price appreciably, and we are sorry to say that the fact is so. The farmers, hucksters, and bachelors appear to be all unconcerned of the condition of the public, or at least determined not to recognize it. It is outrageous that butter should be selling at thirty cents a pound with such enormous hay crops as we have had this season.—Phl. American.

"An ill wind," etc.—During the recent panic the receipts of the telegraph companies have increased from 75 to 100 per cent. The Wall street office in New York has received and sent as high as 3000 messages daily.

A TROUBLESOME SWAP.—The New York Tribune of Friday relates an amusing story, which it declares to be true, of a lady and gentleman at a bathing place on Long Island. They were engaged to be married, and one warm evening when walking along the beach, talking nonsense, they came to a beautiful cove, which was divided by a rocky projection into two nice little bathing places. It was agreed that they should bathe here, one taking one place and the other the other, so that they would be out of sight of each other. They went in, were having a first-rate time, splashing about and talking over the rock to each other, when a little scamp, who had been fishing there, happened to see them, and straightway was possessed by the Devil to change their clothes. He did it, and the result is thus related:

As the boy ran behind a sand hill his long shadow between her and the sinking sun attracted the lady's notice, and in some trepidation she hastened to don her apparel. Fancy her "feelings" on finding, not her own clothes, but the hat, coat, vest, and other articles, in extenso, of the gentleman on the other side of the promontory! How could it have happened—and what was to be done? Was that fearfully long shadow some spirit of the sea or shore, who, offended at her intrusion upon his solitude, had resorted to this method of punishing her temerity? It were better to imagine her situation than to attempt to describe it.

In the meantime the gentleman, too, repaired to the shore to dress. Speechless astonishment was depicted on his countenance as it fell upon a heap of women's clothing. "What in thunder," he muttered to himself, "does this mean?" In the place turned around, or am I crazy?" In the greatest perplexity he took up one article of feminine apparel after another to the number of about thirty, letting one after another drop again upon the rock where he stood, with many a half audible ejaculation of wonder. There was no doubt in his mind as to whom the things belonged, but how did they get there, and where were his own clothes? With one arm akimbo, he pressed his other hand upon his forehead to collect his bewildered senses, little thinking that the mischievous elf who was the author of his embarrassment was laughing at him from behind the same sand hill.

After a few moments of hesitation, the gentleman shouted to his lady love, the awkward intelligence, and in return was informed that his clothes lay at her feet. All that was to be done was to exchange the lots; but how in the name of delicacy was that consummation so devoutly wished to be effected? The sun was now down, but it was not dark yet. Finally it was arranged that the lady should venture into the water with her eyes seaward, while the lover should exchange the clothes and return to his side of the rocks. Unfortunately, just as he was about to cut around the other side to perform that duty he caught sight of a couple of young ladies not far off and he felt compelled to retreat precipitately to his place again. His discomfited companion would have then come out hastily and called to the ladies for their help, but they were distant and between herself and them she saw a boy passing along.

To cut the story short, the "peculiarly unpleasant predicament" lasted until the young lady felt it necessary, to save herself from being chilled to death, to attire herself in her lover's clothing. He, on his part, put her garments to the same use for his own benefit and a pretty good fit it was; for the two friends were about of a size, and but for the discrepancy of a full beard he might, in a less dusky light than then prevailed, have passed for a lady. It was his intention, in some way or another, to rectify his error, to rectify the matter immediately; but when he had ventured to rejoin his laughing and blushing sweetheart, he saw the mischievous boy a little distance off, with a grin on his impish countenance, closely watching their motions. Quickly putting a handkerchief to his face to conceal his tell-tale beard, the gentleman took the lady's arm; and they sauntered on the shore until it was dark, then entered the hotel as privately as possible, and, making the best of their way to their respective rooms, lost no time in donning more appropriate habiliments.

DRESS.—Nothing shows the character of an individual more than the dress. What a lady wears and how she wears it, the material, fit, and suitability to the occasion of her dress, are generally good criterions to her habits of thought and action. To a close observer the purity and refinement of her nature even can be detected by certain indications in the selection and arrangement of the external adornment of her person. True refinement, that which springs from nature, is a delicate and thoughtful feeling that from intuition becomes a habit, is discernible as much in the neatness and adjustment of a collar, the line of a ribbon, as in word that may be uttered or action that may be performed. The observances of fashion, it is true, demand to a greater or less extent a certain style of dress for all who follow its dictates; and fashionably dressed ladies, to be in the fashion, must appear in the rustle of a gown, mantle, hat, and all the minor et ceteras that shall have the freshness of newness to recommend them; and they are, therefore, so far as cleanliness goes, unquestionably neat. But mark how the dress is arranged, and how the colors of color, if you would ascertain whether the dress is an ill-sorted or harmonious one; and above all, take occasion to note how the lady dresses in her own home, when off her guard, with "nobody but her husband" to see her.

One of the greatest physiological observers of any age, Lavater, paid particular heed to all outward habits as the true indices of the inner life. It was a remark of his that all persons, male and female, who manifest an habitual nicety of dress displayed the same neatness in their domestic affairs, declaring that "young women who neglect their toilette, and manifest little concern about their apparel, indicate in this very particular a disregard of order, a mind little adapted to the details of house-keeping, of deficiency of taste and of the qualifications that inspire love. The girl of eighteen, who desires not to please, will be a slut and a shrew at twenty-five."

Those young girls who imagine that they, as soon as they have achieved a husband, can throw off all care about their dress, keeping their show garments only for company, and pitching on their untidy persons any cast-off duds in their own home, make a great mistake—the one great mistake of their lives. They need not marvel why it is that their husbands prefer the society they meet at clubs, or the society of other women, to their own. The need of wear, and their husbands' late hours or untidy habits. No man, however much he may love the carefully dressed girl he courted, will tolerate after marriage a slattern, one who keeps all her fine clothes and fine smiles for others. A well-known author tells his fair readers, with emphatic nction, that "it is one of the moral duties of every married woman always to appear well dressed in the presence of her husband."

To be well-dressed need not imply an expensive dress. A simple, neatly-fitting robe of muslin or calico, if tastefully made and tastefully selected, as to harmony of color, shows the purity and true refinement of the wearer's mind more effectually than the most elaborately expensive attire that the ingenuity of modern millinery could devise. The suitability to the occasion of dress is also what should be studied. A simple, quiet, unostentatious dress is adapted to all occasions, at home or abroad; while a showy, conspicuous dress can be worn with impunity in very few places, and by very few persons, without seeming obtrusive and decidedly vulgar. The laws regulating dress are really quite a scientific study, and should be so considered; though to those possessing that intuitive sense of the fitness of things, of the universal harmony existing throughout nature, which may extend even to the aesthetics of dress, these laws are understood and practiced without any effort.

Singular.—As the steamer City of Cleveland was coming from Detroit to Cleveland, when near the clay banks off Point au Pelee, she ran into a flock of ducks which were winging their way through the darkness. The glass of the large locomotive lamp was smashed to pieces, two of the ducks and a pretty small bird being caught in the lamp. Three other ducks were picked up dead on the deck. The Siamese Twins, now about 45 years of age, have 14 children. They are about to proceed to Cuba to exhibit themselves.

The California mail steamers are in bad luck. The Northern Light, on her last homeward trip, ran on a coral reef three miles from the island of Old Providence. The steamer Star of the West, on her outward passage, encountered a very heavy gale and was obliged to throw overboard part of her cargo. She also went ashore on the coast of Florida, where she stuck fast for three hours. The St. Louis has been substituted for the Northern Light. The New York Tribune of the 19th says:

The Northern Light, on her passage homeward, was in some danger of sharing the fate of the Central America. Twenty-three hours out, she ran on a coral reef three miles from Old Providence, a small island in the Caribbean sea, in lat. 13 deg. 21 min. N., and about a hundred miles east of the Mosquito coast. The steamer lay on the reef some eight or nine hours before she succeeded in getting off. The sea was perfectly calm, and the shore was high, but the passengers, who had just before heard of the fate of the Central America, could not but contemplate with some apprehensions the contingency, should a storm arise, of a similar fate.

The purser of the ship, for some reason or other, seems to have kept this accident to himself. We submit an account furnished by a passenger:

We left Aspinwall at 8 o'clock P. M., on Monday, October 8, having just heard the news of the loss of the Central America. We had beautiful weather, and at noon on Tuesday had made one hundred and eighty miles on our way to Havana. We were then in lat. 12 deg. 15 min. north, long. 80 deg. 46 min. west. The afternoon passed pleasantly, and we were making twelve knots an hour, when, at five minutes before 7 in the evening, we were startled by the ship's thumping five distinct times upon what proved to be a coral reef. The engines were immediately stopped, and the sounding lines thrown over. A boat was soon lowered away, and we found but about 14 feet of water all around the ship. Rockets were thrown up, and were answered by the arrival from the Island of Old Providence, about 3 miles distant, of two dug-outs, manned by the inhabitants, but having with them the captain of a coal ship in the company's service, which had been wrecked near the same place eight weeks previously. His men went to Aspinwall in open boats, took passage in the Central America home, and were lost in that unfortunate steamer. He informed us that there was plenty of water and provisions on the island, and a good harbor on the opposite side, where three five-ton schooners were then lying. We then sent the second officer with a boat to induce the schooners to come to the steamer, but there was no wind, and one only reached us about 7 o'clock the next morning.

In the meantime the engines were started every few minutes, and the passengers sent from stem to stern and from larboard to starboard, that their weight might assist in moving her. At midnight an anchor was dropped ahead, which, by the help of the windlass, caused the ship to swing almost round. The bows were clear, but she still seemed to be fast, from midships to stern. About 3 o'clock in the morning four boat loads of passengers were sent on shore, and thirty tons of water discharged from the boilers. The tide had now risen. A strong pull was made upon the anchor, both wheels were put in motion, and at 4 o'clock she went off into deeper water, having been on the reef all night. Guns were then fired to recall the boats, which were all hoisted on board by 7 o'clock, and the steamer stood on her course. At that moment the steam frigate Walash, which we had left at Aspinwall, to sail in twelve hours, came in sight, and fired two guns, which we did not answer, as we no longer needed assistance. Just as we got off, the lady passengers were all preparing to go on board the schooner, which was now approaching us. After the first panic, which was very great at first, perfect order prevailed on board. The captain was perfectly cool, and showed a great deal of seamanship in getting the steamer off. He had been examining his chart just before, but was on deck when we struck. The sea was calm, and while we lay on the rocks the ship made no water, as was proved by trying the pumps.

NAVAL.—The steam frigate Roanoke, just taken out of the dry dock at this station, is now being stripped under the shears, preparatory to re-entering for thorough overhauling, repairs for which were received a short time ago. This vessel, we already know, was ruined at the time of her launching. The survey at this station, some time ago, revealed the fact that her back was broken. She swells up amidships—or is "hogged," as sailors term it—ten inches from her original model. At the time of launching, her keel beveled downward between stem and stern from a true line five inches. At the present moment it arches five inches. Standing aft, and looking forward along her flush gun-decks, the hump in her sheer is very plain to the eye. During the survey her planking outside in several places amidships was observed to be broken short off, and the same is true of some of her heavy timbers; when she is stripped of her casing it is supposed that the bolts of her iron cross timbers will be found broken. It would probably cost nearly her original value to make her again as staunch as when new, and bring her back to her original model, as to do this she would necessarily have to be stripped down to her keel for a large portion of her length. We believe, however, that it is not proposed to give such a thorough overhauling as that would necessitate. The brig Dolphin is now in the dry dock for repairs. While stripping off her copper on Wednesday, about eight inches of the sword of a sword-fish was found sticking fast in her bottom. It was found in her bows, wedged in her garboard streak, pointing forward and upward, from its position, that the vessel and fish were approaching each other rapidly, and in order to avoid the vessel, the latter made a plunge to pass under the vessel, but failing in so doing, his sword pricked the copper and passed down beneath it till it struck the garboard streak, and snapped short off, leaving the point fast in the vessel's bottom.

The sword of a sword-fish is of solid bone, stands firm, straight out from the upper jaw, its base being the jaw itself. Its shape is precisely that of the short artillery rapier, commonly in use a few years ago, though much stouter in proportion to its length, its flat surface protruding horizontally. The fish itself is of marked shape, though more round, and weighs from 400 to 1,200 pounds, the sword upon each varying with their size from two feet to forty inches in length. It is a very rapid fish and possessed of great strength, as its form indicates. We once saw the sword of a large fish broken short off in a vessel's bottom. It had struck fair and square on her two-inch oak planking, passed through it and again through her inch ceiling, and protruded four inches on the inside, the sword having passed through the bottom, a total of eleven inches. The point was broken off on the inside, and she never suffered any leak from the sanguinary stab inflicted.

RELIGIOUS LIBERTY IN TURKEY.—A correspondent has sent us a statement which tends to prove the good faith of the Turkish government in carrying out the religious liberty guaranteed both to Christians and Mahomedans. At Constantinople a Turk and his wife and child have been baptized by the American missionary, Dr. Hamelin, by the name of "Freeman."

It appears that on the 3d instant two officers of the Porte went to the office of Dr. Hamelin, after previous notice, to investigate the case of the Freeman family, converted from Mahomedanism to Christianity. Dr. Hamelin at first demurred, but a strict examination took place. The officers of the Porte examined Mr. Freeman. The object was to ascertain whether he had been driven from Islamism to Christianity by any trouble or supposed wrongs, but the answers were deemed satisfactory by the Turkish authorities.

Mrs. Freeman was then subjected to the same ordeal, after which it was arranged that the Turkish lady and her daughter should have an interview together. The result convinced Dr. Hamelin that there was no compulsion in the case, and the ceremony was therefore performed. The account adds, "It is the will of his Majesty, our sovereign, and it has become the established law of the empire, that every subject, without any exception, shall enjoy entire religious freedom. The Mussulman is now as free to become a Christian as the Christian is free to become a Mussulman." Two days previously Dr. Hamelin married a young Protestant Armenian to a Turkish lady who had been baptized in Malta.

WHITE TEETH, PERFUMED BREATH, AND BEAUTIFUL COMPLEXION—can be acquired by using the "Balm of a Thousand Flowers." What lady or gentleman would remain under the curse of a disagreeable breath, when the using "BALM OF A THOUSAND FLOWERS" as a dentifrice, would not only render it sweet, but leave the teeth white as alabaster? Many persons do not know their breath is bad, and the subject is so delicate their friends will never mention it. Beware of counterfeits. Be sure each bottle is signed FETHIDGE & CO., N. Y.

A CARD. We would respectfully call the attention of the public to a MARBLE CHRONOMETER placed in our window, showing the exact time. It is a clock of pure American manufacture, and has been exhibited at the World's Fair in Paris in competition with the best London and French Chronometers, and also at the World's Fair in New York, and in every instance has received the highest premium for unequalled workmanship and correct time-keeping.

To our watch department we have secured the services of Mr. Ed. Heilig, of New York. Mr. Heilig can execute any kind of watch-work fully equal to J. H. Johnson, Frodsham, Adams, or any of the first London watchmakers. 09 J&B JOHN KITT'S & CO.

BOERHAVE'S
HOLLAND BITTERS

THE CELEBRATED HOLLAND REMEDY FOR DYSPEPSIA,
DISEASE OF THE KIDNEYS, LIVER COMPLAINT,
WEAKNESS OF ANY KIND
FEVER AND AGUE,
And the various affections consequent upon a disordered STOMACH OR LIVER.

Such an Indigestion, Acidity of the Stomach, Colicky Pains, Headache, Loss of Appetite, Constipation, Costiveness, Blind and Bleeding Eyes, In all Nervous, Rheumatic, and Neuralgic Affections, it has innumerable instances, proved highly beneficial, and in others effected a decided cure.
This is a purely vegetable compound, prepared on strictly scientific principles, after the manner of the celebrated Hollander Professor, Boerhave. Because of its great success in most of the European States, its introduction into the United States was intended more especially for those of our far-located scattered here and there over the face of this mighty country, meeting with great success among them, I now offer it to the American public, knowing that its truly wonderful medicinal virtues must be acknowledged.
It is particularly recommended to those persons whose constitutions may have been impaired by the continuous use of ardent spirits, or other forms of dissipation. Generally instantaneous in its effect, it finds its way directly to the seat of life, thrilling and quickening every nerve, raising up the drooping spirit, and, in fact, infusing new health and vigor in the system.
NOTICE.—Whoever expects to find this a beverage will be disappointed; but to the sick, weak, and low spirited it will prove a grateful and tonic cordial, possessed of singular remedial properties.

CAUTION.
The great popularity of this delightful Aroma has induced many imitations, which the public should guard against purchasing. Do not venture to buy anything else until you have given Boerhave's Holland Bitters a fair trial. One bottle will convince you how infinitely superior it is to all these imitations.

STOLEN GOODS.—We hear from Officer Bligh that he has recently recovered several articles of clothing supposed to be stolen, which may be reclaimed by the owners' inquiring at the police office.
Among them is a black mohair overcoat with plaid lining, plaid flannel, and several pairs of shoes.

An Irishman, named Mulcah, living on Walnut street, between Floyd and Preston, shot his wife this morning. She was reproving him for spending his money foolishly when he drew a pistol and fired, the ball taking effect in the neck. Her recovery is doubtful. The Irishman was arrested and lodged in jail.

RAILROAD ACCIDENT.—We learn from our clever and attentive friend, the Adams Express messenger on the Lexington train, that an accident occurred yesterday on the Kentucky Central road. As the regular train, which left Covington on Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock, was approaching the fair ground switch, near Paris, it ran off the track in consequence of the switch being misplaced. Col. Thompson, one of the most agreeable and entertaining of the Adams Express Company, had a narrow escape. The trucks of the Express car came through the floor, knocking out four of the teeth of Col. T. and otherwise injuring him. The baggage checker and water boy were also injured. It was 1 o'clock in the morning before the train reached Lexington.

POLICE PROCEEDINGS.—Friday, October 23.— George Wilkinson last evening offered a coat for sale at the Baltimore House, on Wall street, which was proven to have been stolen from Sproule & Mandeville. Committed to answer at the circuit court.
Wm. Brewster this morning when passing Sproule & Mandeville's espied a vest which he fancied. He immediately took possession, hid it under his coat, and then walked up street. Committed in default of $500 bail to answer at the circuit court.

Thomas Coney was charged with drunkenness and abuse of his wife. His good woman however appeared this morning and so feelingly appealed to the court that Coney was discharged.

Martha Prior is a disorderly woman, and was presented by her landlord as a dangerous character.
Workhouse two months or the alternative of moving to Indiana.

CRIMINAL COURT.—Friday, Oct. 23.—The case of the Commonwealth vs. James McMullen for murder was continued, Mr. J. B. Lancaster, his counsel; being unwell. An application was made for a change of venue, but not pressed.

We are indebted to the James Montgomery for late New Orleans papers.

Our friends of Adams Express have favored us with New York and Baltimore papers in advance of the mail.

We are under similar obligations to Mr. Lee Stedman, one of the courteous attaches of the Louisville Hotel.

FIRE NEAR NEW ORLEANS.—A fire occurred at Gretna on the morning of the 16th, which destroyed twenty-five buildings and much of their contents.
The loss is set down at $130,000.

At the same time the salt warehouse of E. Thayer, in Algiers, was destroyed by fire. Loss $25,000.
At Milneburg, on the same day, the Washington Hotel and Arch House were burned down. Loss $8,000.

From the Houston (Miss.) Petrel, of the 7th inst., we learn that the valuable flouring mills near Buena Vista, in Chickasaw county, Miss., belonging to J. B.
Gladney, were totally consumed by fire on the night of the 2d inst. Everything was lost about the premises except the books. Loss estimated at $25,000. The mills were not insured.

SOME PUMPKINS.—We saw at the Louisville Hotel, a day or two ago, a pumpkin, raised in Hunter's Bottom by Mr. Dewees, which weighed 133 pounds.

RIGHTS OF COLORED PERSONS IN THEATERS.— Two colored men, who attempted to enter the Howard Athenaeum, at Boston, last winter, upon the same footing as white folks, were refused admittance; whereupon they brought a suit against the proprietors, which has recently been decided against them, Judge Abbot, before whom the case was tried, declaring that the managers of a place of public amusement have the right to designate to what part of the house colored persons may be admitted.

Captain Alexander Reynolds, who was dismissed as a defaulter to the government, having shown that the government was his debtor, is to be reinstated. A resignation in the Paymaster's Department has been sent to the Secretary of War, to take effect on the 31st of December. Capt. Reynolds will be appointed to the vacancy. Should an earlier vacancy occur he will fill it.

BY TELEGRAPH.

Reported for the Evening Bulletin.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23.
The President, having learned that ex-President Pierce contemplates visiting the Island of Madeira for the benefit of his wife's health, has tendered a passage through the Secretary of the Navy, in the U. S. steamer Powhatan, which is on the eve of leaving for the East, touching at Madeira.
A letter, received at the War Department, states that the 5th and 10th regiments of infantry and Phillips's battery left Fort Laramie on the 9th September on their way to Utah.

NEW YORK, Oct. 23.
M. DeReaslaaf has been appointed chargé d'affaires from Denmark to the United States.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 23, M.
J. C. Stuck, United States surveyor, contradicted the report recently published in the New York Tribune that several companies of surveyors were murdered by the Cheyennes and Sioux Indians in the northwest corner of Nebraska.

The Kansas constitutional convention met on the 20th.
Renick & Peterson, bankers, have suspended.
Assets ample.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22.
The ladies of the District, at a meeting held in this city this afternoon, formed themselves into a Herndon Fund Association and appointed a committee with instructions to issue a circular inviting the co-operation of the women of America to raise funds and invest the same for the benefit of the family of the late Capt. Herndon. The Mayor of Washington and Col. Irwin delivered addresses on the occasion.

The Interior Department has just received additional advice from Superintendent Magraw's section of the Oregon Road Expedition, dated at Independence Rock on the 13th of September. Engineer Lander, who was in advance of the party, succeeded in finding an excellent route from the summit of the South Pass to Bear or Soda Springs on the Bear River, and had been quite successful West of these springs.

Upon the discovery of a good road between the points first mentioned depended the success of this portion of the parties who are engaged in the construction of this great thoroughfare from Fort Kearney to the California State line at Honey Lake.
The opening of this new route will save many miles of travel to both California and Oregon emigrants.
It is thought the expedition will get through to California by the 15th of December.

The accounts of Superintendent Kirk's section of the expedition are also favorable. It is probable the work will be completed before the time last mentioned.

CINCINNATI, Oct. 23.
The ferryboat Newport Belle, plying between this city and Newport, burned to the water's edge at 1 o'clock this morning. Loss, $10,000; probably insured.

DETROIT, Oct. 23.
Jno. Patten was nominated for Mayor by the Democrats to-day.

AUGUSTA, Oct. 13.
The barque David Nichols, of Seaport, Maine, from Mattamusset, bound to St. Mary, put in at St.
Augustine on the 8th instant in distress. The captain of the barque was lost overboard, and the first mate with two of the crew lowered a boat and went in search of him. It is supposed that all were lost.
The second mate, Charles Smith, two of the crew, and the cook were aboard of the vessel. The pilots are searching for the missing boat.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 23.
No change to report in any of the rivers. Weather cloudy and mild, with indications of rain.

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 23.

ST. LOUIS Democrat of Thursday says:
Things look a more cheerful aspect, in fact much better than was anticipated. Renewal of paper is being had to a considerable extent. Merchants are assisting each other notably, and no new failures reported.
Nothing doing in exchange. Currency continues to flow in from the country, incident to the recent movement of our business men, and is received in payment for merchandise and liquidation of debt.

The banks and moneyed institutions enjoyed comparative repose to-day. The State Bank received $150,000 by the steamer Lacy from New Orleans, and also $30,000 by the Kennett from the same point.

A Cincinnati runner came to this place with notes to the amount of $22,800 on the branch of the Farmers' Bank, located here. He succeeded (by stratagem) in offering his money at the bank counter, but a committee secured the key, and locked the cashier up, and refused to let the coin be removed out.
The bank is abundantly able to redeem all its out-standing notes, and any Kentucky could have received the specie, but the people were very much exasperated at the house from which this runner came, it having made five very heavy draws upon this branch during the past summer. It is said that one of the runners from this house, promised that he would visit this bank regular, once a month. The promise has been kept religiously so far, but it will be stopped now.—Somerset (Ky.) Democrat.
